ABBREVIATIONS AND EXPLANATORY GLOSSARY

ALTAR STONE—Stone slab, usually marked with five consecration crosses, forming the top of pre-Reformation (up to early 16th cent.) altars.

A.M.—Ancient Monument under the care of H.M. Ministry of Works.

APSE—Semicircular or polygonal termination of choir or chancel in certain churches.

ARCADE—Series of arches on columns, as nave arcades in churches.

BARBICAN—Outer defence to castle or fortified town, especially double towers protecting gateway or bridge.

BARROW, or LONG BARROW—See Tumulus.

BENCH ENDS—Wooden church seats, in 15th cent. often richly or grotesquely carved, sometimes with tops known as poppy-heads.

BRASS—Sepulchral monumental slab of alloyed metal inlaid in slab of stone, often incised in outline with figure of deceased. In some cases very elaborately treated.

BROACH—Describes octagonal spire which springs from square tower without parapet.

BROAD—Term applied in Norfolk and Suffolk to lakes or expanses of water formed by natural broadening of navigable rivers.

BROCH—Massive, cylindrical Iron Age tower, found in north Scotland. Also called Pictish towers. See Pict's House.

C.—circa (= about).

CENT.—Century.

CHANTRY CHAPEL—Small chapel, often erected in aisles of churches, to which was attached revenue left by the founder providing for singing of Masses for repose of his soul and of others specified.

CHAPTER HOUSE—Special building, usually rectangular, or polygonal, used for business meetings of monastic or other community. Chapter of rule read here daily, hence name.

CLERESTORY—Window clear above an adjoining roof, such as Church nave window above aisle roof.

CLOISTER—Quadrilateral area within precincts of monastery, or cathedral, formed by grouping of buildings and usually having covered walks. Mostly found on south, or sunny side.

COLLEGIATE CHURCH — Church served by staff of clergy in 14th and 15th cent.

CRENELLATED—Provided with battlements, or loopholes through which missiles might be shot.

CROMLECH — Prehistoric structure, consisting of large flat stone placed horizontally on two or more unhewn stones fixed upright in ground. See Dolmen.

CROW-STEPPED—Gable formed of stepped, instead of sloping sides.

DEC.—Decorated (1280–1380).

DOLMEN—Properly, a large unhewn stone resting on others; a gallery of several blocks raised on pillars. See Cromlech.

DUCKING (or CUCKING) STOOL—Fixed to edge of plank, in order to immerse in water by see-saw action a nagging woman.

E.C.—Early Closing Day.

E.E.—Early English (1190–1280).

EASTER SEPULCHRE—Wall recess on north side of chancel, near altar. Here, from Good Friday to Easter Day, was placed the consecrated Host.

FAN VAULTING—Curved rib vaulting, radiating from point, thus producing fan-effect as seen from below.

FRESCO—Often loosely applied to a painting on a wall. True fresco, mode of painting with mineral and earthy pigments on plaster while in moist state, rare in England.

FRONTAL—Rich hanging, covering front of an altar.

GALILEE—Name given to porch, or chapel, usually of considerable size, at entrance of church.

HAMMER-POND — Pond, or lake associated with ancient Sussex iron industry.

HOSPITAL—Term used in Middle Ages to describe almshouses, as against present meaning.

JOUGS—See Scold's Bridle.

LYCH-GATE—Formerly resting-place for coffin at churchyard gate during part of burial service.

MAIDEN'S GARLAND—In medieval times, when maiden died, garland of real, or imitation flowers, attached to personal objects, was carried at funeral and later suspended over dead girl's church seat.

M.D.—Market Day.

MASS, or SCRATCH DIALS—Usually found on S. exterior walls of old churches, in form of circle, with centre hole for gnomon, and lines radiating therefrom. Believed to indicate canonical hours to priest. Line on which shadow of gnomon fell at 9 a.m. incised more heavily, this being usual medieval English Sunday Mass hour. In use up to 15th cent.

MERCAT CROSS—Found in Scotland, and formerly used as proclamation centre, or where criminals were punished.

MISERICORD—Projecting bracket on under side of hinged choir stall seat, often grotesquely carved. Gave support to infirm when standing during long service. See Stalls.

MOOT HALL—Early English term for hall of meeting for debate, to make laws or administer justice. Sometimes applied to Town Hall.

N.T.—A building, beauty spot, nature reserve or ancient monument, etc., under the control of The National Trust for Places of Historical Interest or Natural Beauty, or The National Trust for Scotland (N.T. Scot.).

NEOLITHIC—Later phase of prehistoric Stone Age, using polished, highly-finished implements. c. 3000–1800 B.C.

NORM.—Norman (1050–1150).

PACKHORSE BRIDGE — Medieval bridge, just wide enough to carry pedestrians and laden horses.

PARGETRY—Plaster treatment for outside walls, with incised decorative features, found in Eastern England.

PEEL, or PELE TOWER—Term applied to tower, or keep built as place of refuge during raids, especially near Scottish Border.

PERP.—Perpendicular (1380–1550).

PICT'S HOUSE—Low, curved underground earth gallery, found in parts of Scotland. See Broch.

PINETUM—Plantation of pines for ornamental or botanical purposes.

PISCINA — Perforated stone basin, usually of ornamental form and placed near an altar, for carrying away water used in rinsing the chalice, etc.

Q.V.—Quod vide (= which see).

REFECTORY—Room used for meals in Monasteries, religious houses, etc.

REREDOS—Screen behind an altar, often elaborately ornamented with carvings and figures.

ROMAN CAMP—Usually rectangular, with vallum (q.v.) and fosse, or ditch. Divided into four sections by roads crossing at right-angles. Latin Castrum (as Chester, Lancaster, etc.).

ROOD SCREEN—Wooden, or stone carved screen separating choir from nave. Along top was beam supporting representation of the Crucifixion, called the Rood. Rood loft was above screen and approached by staircase, often still to be seen in wall beside chancel arch.

ROYAL BURGH—Scottish borough possessing Crown charter.

SACRAMENT HOUSE — Scottish ecclesiastical term for carved interior niche for reservation of Elements.

SANCTUS BELL—Bell rung at Elevation of the Host. Often hung in bellcote and generally found at east end of nave gable.

SAXON.—Anglo-Saxon (400–1066).

SCOLD'S BRIDLE—Gag formed out of iron head-piece to punish scolding women. (In Scotland, called jougs.)

SEDILIA—Seats used by priests during the Mass; usually of stone, and recessed in S. wall of chancel.

SQUINT, or HAGIOSCOPE — An opening in internal walls of church, usually found running obliquely from transepts into chancel, giving view of altar. Uncertainty prevails as to original use.

STALACTITE—Deposit of carbonate of lime hanging from roof of cave like icicle.

STALAGMITE—Deposit of carbonate of lime on floor of cave, sometimes uniting with stalactite.

STALLS—Fixed, wooden choir or chancel church seats, generally carved and canopied. See Misericord.

STANDING STONE—Monolith of unhewn stone.

TESSELLATED PAVEMENT—Mosaic-type pavement formed of small pieces of stone, marble, etc., much used by Romans.

TITHE BARN—Barn where tithe produce was collected, tithes being tenth part of earth's fruits, reserved for clergy.

TOLBOOTH—Scottish term for former tax, or toll booth, now usually applied to Town Hall.

TRANS.—Transitional (1150–1190).

TUMULUS—Ancient burial mound of earth, which might contain either body or ashes, sometimes enclosed in masonry.

VALLUM—Rampart of earth excavated from ditch of earthwork, with palisade on top, as that enclosing Roman camp.

VITRIFIED FORT—Hill fort, with walls fused by fire.

WEALD—Region in Kent and Sussex between North and South Downs. Once densely forested, now well-wooded and with pastures. In 16th and 17th cents., important iron industry flourished here.

WOLDS—Name given in Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, and Yorkshire (East Riding) to low ranges of hills.

PREFACE

THIS book, the A.A. Members Touring Guide, is intended to supplement the contents of the A.A. Members Handbook by providing general touring information which will add to the interest and pleasure of travelling by road. It takes a place somewhere between the A.A Handbook and the well-known and more comprehensive A.A. Road Books of England and Wales, and of Scotland.

The Touring Guide has been designed to give a wide range of information in a compact form so that it can easily be carried in the pocket of a car or the pannier of a motor cycle, or even in the jacket pockets of those who wish to wander on foot round our incomparable towns and villages.

There are about 6,000 places named in the Gazetteer, and in each case there is a simple cross-reference to the Atlas so that locations can readily be checked. It has not been possible to show every place-name individually in the Atlas owing to limitations of scale.

An important feature of the Atlas in the Touring Guide is that it is in identical form—as regards scale and the splitting up into pages—to that in the Handbook. The latter emphasises the extent and availability of A.A. service, whereas the Atlas in the Touring Guide is primarily intended to give members the greatest possible help in selecting the best route for any particular journey. Combined, the two Atlases give a range of information which could not be combined, with clarity, in one. They are directly complementary.

Although there is inevitably a certain amount of duplication in the general information given in both the Touring Guide and the Handbook, both publications have been designed in the hope that members will find them an ideal combination.

MEMBERSHIP

THE main classes of membership are:

(1) Private car membership: two guineas a year; badge fee ten shillings.
(2) Private three-wheeled car or motor cycle membership: one and a half guineas a year; badge fee five shillings.
(3) Industrial vehicle membership: any number of vehicles, including three-wheelers, may be registered with the Association: two guineas a year for each unit of one or two vehicles; badge fee ten shillings for each vehicle.
(4) Overseas membership: two guineas for the first year; badge fee ten shillings. Subsequent annual payments of ten shillings and sixpence cover all A.A. benefits in Great Britain and Ireland for six months in any one year and advice and assistance at all times. Special terms are available to members of overseas motoring organisations federated or allied with the Association.

Badges and telephone-box keys are for use only during the period of membership. They remain the property of the Association, and members undertake not to lend, sell or sub-let them and to return them whenever membership may cease. Badge fees are not refunded.

All subscriptions are payable in advance, and cheques, postal orders and money orders should be made out in favour of " The Automobile Association " and crossed " A/C Payee ". Payment by banker's order is strongly recommended as it reduces office costs and thus allows more to be spent on direct benefits. The Association does not accept responsibility for cash sent in letters which are not registered.

Members are urged to quote their membership numbers in ALL communications with the Association and to write their names and addresses in BLOCK CAPITALS.

SERVICE ON THE ROAD

THE ROAD PATROLS

THE principal benefit provided for A.A. members is the Road Patrol Service. The Patrols wear a distinctive khaki uniform and are mounted on yellow motor cycle Road Service Outfits. Thus they can come speedily to the help of members in difficulty on the road. Their comprehensive equipment enables them to undertake all running repairs and to deal with any emergencies. Throughout the year they regularly patrol all important main roads in the country, but their " beats " do not include the larger towns, where assistance from garages is normally available.

Hours of duty are from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. (or lighting-up time if earlier), and from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Sundays during the summer. Patrols leave their beats between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m., and during the winter there is a " break " from 10.45 a.m. to 11 a.m. In addition, when lighting-up time occurs after 6 p.m., half an hour is taken for tea between 4.30 p.m. and 5 p.m. During the morning and afternoon " breaks " the Road Service Outfit is so parked that members can readily see it and find the Patrol. Where traffic is exceptionally heavy, the roads may be patrolled earlier and later than the normal hours.

The duties of the Patrols are to assist members in cases of breakdown or accident and to render any other service which is reasonably practicable on the road. They may not attempt major repairs, which should properly be undertaken by a garage. Patrols are experts in improvisation and have a thorough knowledge of the districts adjoining their beats. They are also proficient in first aid, which they render to members and non-members alike.

They are responsible for dealing with any matter likely to cause danger or inconvenience to traffic and for warning members in such circumstances. Where necessary, they erect temporary signs to indicate alternative routes. Their reports during fog, snow, ice and floods are the basis of the A.A. Road-Weather Service.

When in difficulty on the road, members should ask a passing motorist—in each direction—to inform the nearest Patrol.

RADIO ROAD PATROLS

AS a development of the Road Patrol Service, the Association uses radio as a means of direct communication with Patrols in certain areas, as indicated below. Members who require help on the road in these areas during patrol hours should telephone the appropriate A.A. office, giving name and address, membership number, make, type and registration number of the vehicle, exact location and, if possible, brief particulars of the breakdown.

London (WHItehall 1200): 20 miles radius from Charing Cross.

Guildford (2841): Surrey and parts of Sussex, Hampshire and Berkshire.

Glasgow (CENtral 5845): 20 miles radius from the city centre.

The Association also operates radio-controlled Breakdown Services at night and during week-ends in London, Birmingham, Leeds and Glasgow, as explained more fully on page 9.

The flexibility of radio communication greatly assists in the provision of speedier service of all kinds.

A.A. ROADSIDE TELEPHONE BOXES

A.A. Roadside Telephone Boxes with a 24-hour service are placed at carefully selected points along main roads. Under a reciprocal agreement R.A.C. telephone boxes, bringing the total up to well over 1,200, can also be opened at any time by the key issued to all members of the Association. The sites of all these boxes are shown in the atlas at the end of this book.

All local calls are free to members on tour. The charges for trunk or toll calls should be put in the box provided, and details should be entered in the register.

Each telephone box contains a distance map and a folder giving the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the nearest A.A. office, appointed Hotels and Garages, police, hospitals, doctors, R.S.P.C.A., and so on.

Messages for a travelling motorist can normally be conveyed through the Patrols by telephoning the nearest A.A. office. A.A. telephone boxes should not be contacted direct.

FREE BREAKDOWN SERVICE

THE Free Breakdown Service is complementary to the A.A. Road Service. It enables members whose vehicles have broken down on the road to obtain free assistance from a garage if an A.A. Patrol is not readily available. With the two services constantly at his disposal, the A.A. member enjoys the most comprehensive safeguard against trouble on the road ever offered to the private motorist.

Free Breakdown Service is available to:

Private car members, their paid drivers and also their relatives who live at the same address and who are driving the member's car;

Motor cycle and three-wheeled car members who pay the annual subscription of two guineas;

Overseas members motoring in Great Britain or Ireland and members who live in islands off the mainland;

Invalid chair members;

Bona fide employees when driving private cars or motor cycles registered under a firm's or group membership;

Drivers of private cars or motor cycles included in a combined membership.

The service is not given free in the case of breakdowns to commercial vehicles.

Free Breakdown Service covers assistance from the nearest available garage, as follows:

All forms of mechanical and electrical first aid, including labour charges for work up to one hour at the scene of the breakdown.

Towage to the garage which has been called out, if the car cannot be started within one hour; work done at the garage is not covered.

Delivery of petrol and oil.

Wheel-changing, provided a serviceable spare is carried. In the event of tyre trouble when no serviceable spare is carried, the service covers the cost of one outward and return journey of the breakdown vehicle, but not the repair or labour charges.

Free Breakdown Service from a garage is not available when the vehicle has been involved in an accident, when it has been ditched, has sunk into soft ground or become snowbound, nor when the breakdown occurs at a member's home or at a garage. The Association does not bear the cost of petrol, oil, spare parts or car hire charges.

It is inevitable that occasions arise where members are in need of service but do not qualify for it under the Free Breakdown Scheme. In such cases no effort is spared to provide help, either from a garage or from one of the Association's own Patrols, or, in those areas where they operate, from one of the Radio Patrols or Radio-controlled Breakdown Service vehicles.

HOW TO OBTAIN FREE BREAKDOWN SERVICE

THE first step is to find, on the Service Map in the Members Handbook, the nearest town or village at which there is an A.A. Appointed Garage. Those which operate the Free Breakdown Service are indicated by special symbols under each place-name in the main list in the Handbook. If no garage is available in the vicinity with one of the appropriate symbols, members should call the nearest other garage, pay the charges on the spot and apply to the Association for reimbursement later.

In the Greater London, Birmingham, Leeds and Glasgow areas members should telephone for assistance to the A.A. Emergency Services at WHItehall 1200, EDGbaston 3555, Leeds 54124 and Glasgow CENtral 5845.

The member's name, address and membership number should be given to the garage (or the A.A. Emergency Staff), together with the make, type, registration number and exact location of the vehicle. It is also essential that the member or his representative should remain with the vehicle, as the employees of most garages are forbidden to work on unattended vehicles.

Garages marked in the Handbook by the special symbols render breakdown service free on production of a current card of membership. If the card cannot be shown to the mechanic at the time, the charges should be paid direct and the receipted account submitted to the Association with a claim for reimbursement.

Garages are not agents of the Automobile Association, nor is the Automobile Association an agent of any garage. No liability will be accepted by the Association for loss, damage or injury arising from towage or repairs or for storage charges in respect of vehicles left at garages.

The Committee reserves the right to restrict excessive use of the Free Breakdown Service.

A.A. RADIO-CONTROLLED BREAKDOWN SERVICES

IN London, Birmingham, Leeds and Glasgow the Association maintains its own breakdown vehicles, each manned by experienced mechanics who are able to carry out all repairs which can reasonably be undertaken at the roadside. The vehicles, which are comprehensively equipped, are controlled by means of two-way short-wave radio by the A.A. Emergency Services in London (WHItehall 1200), Birmingham (EDGbaston 3555), Leeds (54124) and Glasgow (CENtral 5845).

The A.A. breakdown vehicles operate every night from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. (12 midnight in Leeds and Glasgow) and also during Saturday afternoons and Sundays. All breakdowns are covered, except those which are caused by accidents or which occur at the member's home or at a garage.

FREE LEGAL DEFENCE AND ASSISTANCE

THE Association's Free Legal Defence Scheme provides for the payment of the fees of A.A. solicitors for the legal representation (a) of every car member and his paid driver and (b) of every member who is the owner-driver of a three-wheeled car or motor cycle, in any proceedings under the Statutes applicable to the use and ownership of motor vehicles, in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction in Great Britain and equivalent Courts in Ireland, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man. Only the Association's appointed solicitors may act on behalf of members.

Free Legal Defence is available to members who, before the commission of the alleged offence, have paid their subscriptions for the current year, and it is, of course, essential that the alleged offence should have been committed during the period of membership. The Committee, however, reserves the right to withhold Free Legal Defence in any case where, in its view, the circumstances render this course desirable.

It is important, where legal representation is desired, that the Association should be notified immediately there is any intimation of intended prosecution and that the summons should be forwarded to the Association as soon as possible after it is served and in any case not less than four days before the hearing, to enable the solicitors to go carefully into the evidence and deal with the case.

From time to time the Association finances or supports appeals to the High Court or Quarter Sessions against convictions which are either against the weight of the evidence or wrong in law. Arrangements have also been made by which the Association, in approved cases, will extend its Free Legal Defence Scheme to provide adequate legal assistance, including the briefing of Counsel, for members or their paid drivers charged with manslaughter—or the equivalent charge—arising out of alleged negligence in the driving of a motor vehicle. This protection cannot be claimed unless the Association is informed immediately after the accident of the circumstances giving rise to the proceedings.

The Association gives Free Legal Advice on any matter directly arising out of the use and ownership of motor vehicles, such as disputes over the buying and selling of cars; liability for accidents on the road; insurance claims; the responsibilities of garage and hotel proprietors, and queries on points in the Road Traffic Acts and the various regulations governing taxation, registration and the licensing of vehicles.

Substantial items of loss or damage are frequently not covered by insurance. In suitable cases, negotiations, as distinct from legal proceedings, are conducted free of charge and with a minimum of trouble to members under the Claims Recovery Service.

ACCIDENTS ON THE ROAD

WHEN damage or injury has been caused to any person, vehicle or animal, the driver must stop and, if asked by any person having reasonable grounds for such a request, must give his name and address, together with that of the owner (where different) and the registration number of the car. Should the driver not give his name and address at the time, he must report the accident to the police as soon as reasonably practicable and in any case within twenty-four hours of the occurrence. Also, where personal injury has occurred, the driver must produce his insurance certificate if asked to do so by a police constable or any person having reasonable grounds for seeing it. Failing this, the driver must report the accident to the police within twenty-four hours and produce the certificate. It is an offence not to report within this period but, by arrangement with the police, the certificate may be produced within five days if it is not immediately available. When, however, the parties to an accident exchange the essential particulars, and the insurance certificate is produced, at the time, there is no need to report the accident to the police.

A motorist involved in an accident on the road should note the following particulars, where applicable:

(1) the names and addresses of witnesses;
(2) the speeds of the vehicles concerned;
(3) the width of the road, the condition of its surface and so on;
(4) what signals, if any, were given;
(5) whether or not the other vehicle was showing correct lights;
(6) the measurements—from the roadside—of the wheel-tracks of the vehicles involved;
(7) the time and the location, including the name of the road;
(8) any personal injuries;
(9) the number and description of the other vehicle, the owner's and driver's names and addresses, and details contained in the insurance certificate, if available;
(10) the number of the A.A. Patrol or police constable who takes particulars.

In no circumstances should any money be given to a person involved in the accident, nor should anything be said which could afterwards be construed as an admission of liability. No letter should be written except under legal advice, which can be obtained free from the A.A.

A.A. MEMBERS' INSURANCE POLICY

A SPECIAL policy recommended by the Automobile Association is issued by the Motor Union Insurance Co., Ltd., 10 St. James's Street, London, S.W.1. It is available only to A.A. members, and in its preparation particular attention was given to the fact that the interests of members would be better served by prompt and liberal settlement of claims in conjunction with a reasonable premium rather than by insistence solely upon low rates. Under no other policy is the member so well protected at a moderate premium.

The Motor Union Insurance Co., Ltd., has an extensive organisation at home and overseas, including engineers and claims specialists to give immediate service. Repairs can be put in hand at once with any repairer, and vehicles are returned to use with the minimum of delay. The policy provides the following special privileges.

On any difference which may arise between himself and the insurance company, every member holding the A.A. policy has the right of appeal to a special committee of the Automobile Association. The insurance company undertakes to pay to the policy-holder without delay any sum awarded by this special committee.

A fund has been placed at the disposal of the Automobile Association Committee, from which it may, at its entire discretion, make grants to policy-holders in cases of loss not covered by the policy but in respect of which the Committee, although of the opinion that no legal claim can be established, nonetheless feels that genuine hardship has been caused.

Members insured with other companies may transfer without loss of their "no claim" discount.

These are valuable benefits of membership. Prospectuses and further information may be obtained from any office of the Association or the company.

PARLIAMENTARY

THE Standing Joint Committee of the Royal Automobile Club, the Automobile Association and the Royal Scottish Automobile Club was formed to secure unity of voice and action on all questions of importance to the motoring community. New legislation is carefully watched, and vigorous action, backed by the combined influence of the three organisations, is taken to oppose proposals contrary to the interests of motorists and to protect them from unreasonable measures, whether of general or local application.

TECHNICAL SERVICE

MEMBERS may obtain advice and assistance from the Association on all matters relating to the purchase, use, maintenance and sale of motor vehicles. Repair accounts are checked for members, and negotiations are conducted in cases of dispute. This service is free, unless an expert examination and report are required.

The Association can provide information about firms which specialise in certain kinds of work or in supplying parts which are difficult to obtain. Materials can be submitted to chemical analysis or physical tests when a reliable opinion cannot otherwise be formed. The cost varies, but an advance quotation can be given.

Vehicle Inspection

Used vehicles offered for sale, component parts, mechanical defects or unsatisfactory repairs are inspected by expert engineers, and detailed reports are supplied. Inspections of used vehicles are normally carried out only at the request of an intending purchaser. The reports are confidential; they must not be used as an instrument for sale or for advertising purposes. The fees for examining motor vehicles at any address in England and Wales, with a short road test where practicable and a typewritten report in each case, are:

Cars or light commercial vehicles . . .	3	5	0
Motor cycles, solo or combination . . .	1	5	0
Commercial vehicles over 30 cwt. . . .	4	5	0

In Scotland and Ireland fivepence a mile is charged for the total distance travelled by the engineer if beyond a radius of 25 miles from his office. Quotations for other vehicles, for dismantled components or for special tests can be obtained on request.

Evidence of Ownership

A motor vehicle does not necessarily belong to the person or organisation named in the registration book. It may be the property of a finance company. Most hire-purchase transactions, however, are registered with a trade body, and the Association can, if specially requested, enquire whether or not the vehicle which forms the subject of a report appears on this register.

LONDON PILOT SERVICE

MEMBERS unfamiliar with London can be met by appointment on the outskirts and piloted to their destination or to a point on their exit route by one of the A.A. uniformed pilots. The charge for this service is 3s. an hour (minimum 10s.) plus fares.

DRIVERS' SERVICE

MEMBERS seeking a permanent driver are invited to apply to the London Headquarters, where a register of available men is kept. In their own interests members are recommended to investigate credentials submitted by applicants. They are also reminded of their liability to pay National Insurance contributions in respect of their chauffeurs.

The Association can recommend independent firms which undertake to drive a member's car on the Continent, to collect or deliver a vehicle at the docks at London or elsewhere and to provide temporary chauffeurs.

CAR HIRE

THE Association has no vehicles to place at the disposal of members, but a list of reputable firms which provide hire cars either on a self-drive or chauffeur-driven basis will be supplied on application.

APPOINTED HOTELS

THE Service Map at the end of the A.A. Members Handbook shows those places at which there are A.A. Appointed or Approved Hotels. This is a useful indication to members wishing to select a point at which to break a journey. The hotels are listed in the Handbook, and some useful notes on hotel accommodation are also given.

Hotels in London are not appointed by the Association, but particulars of establishments inspected and recommended are included in a separate list obtainable on application.

APPOINTED GARAGES

THE Service Map at the end of the A.A. Members Handbook shows those places at which there are garages which have been inspected and appointed by the Association. The Handbook contains a list of these garages, indicating the makes of car for which they hold service agencies from the manufacturers. Stocks of suitable replacement parts are normally maintained. The list also shows garages which have undertaken to provide A.A. Free Breakdown Service, those which undertake repairs to motor cycles and those which specialise in this work. The names and addresses of nearby garages and their hours of opening are displayed in A.A. telephone boxes.

Members who require casual garage accommodation are advised to make a reservation in advance as, except in Central London, garage space is often difficult to obtain. Particulars of the car and the dates during which space is required should be quoted. Garages near docks and airports which undertake the storage of cars while their owners are abroad are specially indicated. Those open always for the sale of petrol and oil are also shown, but hours of business are liable to change without notice. On the main roads there are often filling stations open outside normal hours.

TOURING IN GREAT BRITAIN

A. A. Touring Service is available to members free of charge and includes advice and information on all forms of touring. Every A.A. office can supply detailed itineraries for any journey or tour in Great Britain. A.A. routes give directions, mileages, road numbers, gradients and a description of the road. Town plans are provided, and each page incorporates a strip map with a small plan of the terminal point. A.A. routes normally give directions for both outward and return journeys.

During the holiday seasons the demand for routes is heavy, and members are requested to give at least forty-eight hours' notice and the anticipated date of travel.

Members are asked to say whether the fastest, the quietest or the most picturesque route is wanted and to mention any special requirements. Normally the route given is that considered likely to be the quickest in time. Unexpected or adverse conditions may at any time impose delay. For tours, the average daily mileage and the number of days should be given.

Among the booklets issued free on request are those which deal with caravan and camp sites and farmhouses with accommodation, separate books of day drives from holiday resorts and a detailed list of Castles, Houses and Gardens open to the public. Paper maps of Great Britain, of Ireland and of London are available free, and other maps can be obtained from any A.A. office.

For those who require the fullest possible touring information, there are the " A.A. Road Book of England and Wales ", price 15s., and the " A.A. Road Book of Scotland ", price 12s. 6d., available to members only.

These contain information regarding places of interest, town plans, itineraries and other touring details, together with comprehensive maps.

THE ISLE OF MAN

MEMBERS taking their cars and motor cycles to the Isle of Man should carry the registration book, the certificate of insurance and a driving licence. Special arrangements apply during the period of the motor cycle races.

TOURING IN IRELAND

NORTHERN IRELAND is part of the United Kingdom and comes within the same Customs framework as England, Scotland and Wales. No Customs documents are, therefore, necessary for a car or motor cycle, and the visiting motorist is permitted to circulate freely with his British driving and vehicle licences.

The Republic of Ireland has a separate constitution and its own laws concerning imported motor vehicles, making it necessary for the visiting motorist to obtain various Customs and licensing documents. Passports are not required when travelling between Great Britain and the Republic, but holders of passports other than British should refer to the Irish Embassy, Consular Section, 17 Grosvenor Place, London, S.W.1.

First- and second-class roads in the Republic of Ireland are classified as trunk and link roads, which are equivalent to class A and class B roads respectively. The main touring grounds are well served by good roads, though in certain of the more remote districts some rough surfaces may be encountered.

The Association reserves shipping space for cars and motor cycles on the steamer services to Ireland and assists members at the ports. Similar assistance is also given to members crossing the land frontier. A.A. routes and other touring aids, such as town plans and day drives, can be obtained from the A.A. offices in London, Dublin and Belfast.

There are no currency restrictions for visitors to Ireland, and British money is accepted. Members taking guns require a firearm certificate and an import licence.

No quarantine is necessary when dogs are taken to Ireland, or on their return, unless a special embargo is in force at the time. There are no Customs formalities or restrictions.

An A.A. booklet, " Taking a Motor Vehicle to Ireland ", containing much useful information for visitors, can be obtained on application.

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

NO Customs documents are necessary for the temporary importation of motor vehicles into the Channel Islands. A Customs Specification Form must, however, be certified by the British Customs at the port of embarkation. Members should obtain an International Driving Permit and an International Certificate for Motor Vehicles from the Association before their departure, in order to secure 90 days' exemption from road tax in the Islands. The A.A. has an office in Jersey, and A.A. Port Officers are on duty at the quay.

TOURING ABROAD

THE Association can issue to its members resident in the United Kingdom the necessary documents to enable them to take their cars or motor cycles abroad and to travel from one country to another without delay or difficulty.

The Association also makes shipping reservations on behalf of its members, and A.A. Port Officers are on duty to give members every possible assistance. There are also A.A. representatives at the principal ports on the Continent. A composite fee of £3 10*s.* (motor cycles £1 15*s.*) is charged for the complete foreign touring service. This includes all necessary documents, duty guarantee, " GB " plate, port service and cover under the A.A. Continental Breakdown Service, whereby vehicles beyond local repair are returned by goods train to the nearest continental port at the Association's expense.

Useful information and advice on travel abroad are contained in a series of special booklets available from any A.A. office.

TOURING TRIBUTE

IT is not possible to produce a compact, yet in its way complete, work of this kind without paying a tribute to the many individuals and organizations who have made possible the enjoyment by the present generation of the many places of historic interest and scenes of natural beauty which have come down to us from the past.

Prominent among these are the National Trust, the Council for the Preservation of Rural England, the Roads Beautifying Association and the National Trust for Scotland.

The National Trust for Places of Historic Interest or Natural Beauty was founded in 1895 as the result of the efforts of Miss Octavia Hill, Sir Robert Hunter and Canon Rawnsley, who realized the need for preserving the beauty of the countryside and the legacy of our old buildings. The National Trust alone controls by possession or under covenant over a quarter of a million acres, of which more than 40,000 are in the Lake District.

The Council for the Preservation of Rural England has done so much to preserve the essential qualities which make up the attractiveness of the English countryside, while the Roads Beautifying Association and other national and local bodies have laboured to create and maintain a fitness and beauty which is all too easily lost.

It would be ungracious to omit mention of the painstaking and careful work done by the Ministry of Works in connection with Ancient Monuments and Historic Buildings.

The National Trust for Scotland has played an equally prominent part in preserving the essential qualities of the Scottish landscape, and cares for some of the finest and most characteristic stretches of the Highlands, including part of Glencoe, as well as many of the most interesting buildings in Scotland.

All who tour Great Britain are under a deep debt to the selfless and untiring efforts made by the individuals who have built up such organizations, and now sustain them.

In an industrial age when the survival of the traditional scene is a matter of increasing concern to everyone, it is to be remembered that without funds such work would be impossible, and donations or subscriptions sent to the Secretaries of the various bodies at the addresses given below will enable the work of preservation to be continued and extended.

GAZETTEER

The name of the COUNTY is given after each place-name. This is followed by the POPULATION FIGURES. An asterisk indicates the 1951 preliminary census figures, other figures from earlier sources.

The MAP SQUARE REFERENCE follows, giving the page number of the Atlas at the end of the book followed by the National Grid reference fully explained on page 254. Some places may not be marked on the map but their approximate position can be found by this reference.

Under each entry will be found MILEAGES to surrounding places. Place-names in heavy type signify that they are included on the mileage chart at the end of the book. The word " ferry " indicates that a ferry crossing is involved.

By two or three references it is possible to calculate distances throughout the country. For example, the distance between Torquay and Whitby is required. Under Torquay, Exeter is printed in heavy type, 22 miles; under Whitby, York is in heavy type, 46 miles. The chart shows Exeter to York as 290 miles. The distance from Torquay to Whitby is therefore 358 miles.

Shortly before this book was printed it was announced by the Minister of Transport that official LONDON MILEAGES should be measured from Charing Cross. This terminal point will be used in all future A.A. publications, but the London mileages given under each place-name in the text of this book and those on the Mileage Chart at the end of the book are calculated from the seven traditional points: Whitechapel Church, Shoreditch Church, Hicks's Hall (site in St. John Street, E.C.1), Tyburn Turnpike (The Marble Arch), Hyde Park Corner, and the south ends of Westminster and London Bridges.

For Abbreviations and Glossary, see inside Front Cover.

*In the main built by Henry III, a beautiful example of E.E., contains the shrine of Edward the Confessor, regarded the founder, though little remains of his building. In the Abbey the Sovereigns are crowned, whilst many lie buried, including Henry VII in his magnificent Perp. Chapel. In the *Chapel of St. Edward, besides the shrine, is the Coronation Chair, enclosing the Stone of Scone (Stone of Destiny). Many other chapels. Monuments and tombs abound in great profusion, including many of those of England's illustrious dead and the tomb of the Unknown Warrior; Chapter House; Cloisters; Chapel of the Pyx. Westminster School in precincts.

SOUTHWARK CATHEDRAL, Borough High Street, S.E.3.
One of the best specimens of Gothic (all styles) in London. Noted for its literary associations. In it lie buried J. Gower, friend of Chaucer, and Edmund Shakespeare, the poet's brother. Here John Harvard, founder of the University, was baptised; memorial chapel. Other memorials and tombs.

WESTMINSTER CATHEDRAL, Ashley Place, Victoria Street, S.W.1.

BRIEF NOTES ON ARCHITECTURE

The periods with which the various styles of Ecclesiastical and Domestic architecture were associated, together with the approximate dates, with overlap, are given below. It should be observed that the division into styles is only one of convenience, the names and dates being arbitrary. The term Gothic, which is often applied broadly to all architecture in England from Early English to Tudor, was, at the time of the Renaissance, used in contempt of medieval architecture. Avoiding technicalities, a brief summary of architectural characteristics in the more important styles is also given.

ANGLO-SAXON, A.D. 600–1086

Most Saxon work was crude with small deep-set windows, rounded arches, "long and short" angle stones, surface stripwork, and occasionally interlaced carving.

NORMAN, A.D. 1050–1200

The rounded arch continued but evolved varied and vigorous mouldings, especially for doors, arches, etc. Round pillars were frequent, towers mostly square, and the general effect solid and impressive.

TRANSITIONAL, A.D. 1150–1200

This term is especially applied to the later forms of Norman.

EARLY ENGLISH, A.D. 1170–1300

Showed a marked contrast; with pointed arches, lancet windows, deeply cut mouldings and delicate carving of foliage, whilst spires became prominent.

DECORATED, A.D. 1300–1350

Window tracery developed and became very ornamental, windows were wider and subdivided by mullions, wood roofs became less steep and were often enriched with carving, while the treatment of foliage on capitals, etc., was freer and more naturalistic. Spires were adorned with crockets and pinnacles.

PERPENDICULAR, A.D. 1350–1500

The emphasis of the vertical line was most prominent. Panelling was used on walls and contained perpendicular lines. Windows were of great size, with flattened arches, parapets were pierced and battlemented, and the buttresses, which had increased in boldness throughout the styles, now reached their greatest development and sometimes took the "arched" or "flying" form. Fan tracery vaulting, a characteristic development of English Gothic, was also brought to great perfection.

TUDOR, A.D. 1500–1560

The name frequently given to late Perpendicular work, and towards the end of this style Gothic began to show the influence of the Renaissance. Architectural interest now centred more on the great house than on the church and the style was adapted accordingly. In place of the great pointed window, bays and oriels are to be found. Grouping of chimneys became prominent features and red brick and stone was used in the buildings.

ELIZABETHAN, A.D. 1560–1600

Mainly domestic, it consisted of the traditional structural forms with the use of classic detail as the influence of the Renaissance spread. Oak panelling, elaborate plaster work in ceilings, profuse interior decoration.

JACOBEAN, A.D. 1600–1625

Similar to Elizabethan but with a more extensive use of the classic "Orders". Semi-circular arch, mullioned windows. Many magnificent mansions were built during this period.

INIGO JONES PERIOD, A.D. 1620–1660

This great English architect finally established English Renaissance architecture and it became a national art. Design was more formal and classic in character, ornament rather bold and heavy, interior decoration had increased attention, elaborate plaster work. One of his best-known works is the Banqueting Hall in Whitehall, now the Royal United Service Museum.

THE WREN PERIOD, A.D. 1660–1720

St. Paul's Cathedral and about fifty other churches were built by Sir Christopher Wren after the fire of London. Dome construction, a distinguishing feature of Byzantine architecture, was mastered as at St. Paul's, whilst steeples with diminishing stories were prominent features. The domestic work was classic in design and detail, oak panelling, elaborate plaster work, wood-carving, rich mouldings.

GEORGIAN, A.D. 1720–1800

Attention paid to ordered formalism; dignified and restrained in character, regard paid to symmetry. Elaborate plaster work superseded oak panelling. Doorways with pillared porches. Grecian influence is noticeable especially toward the end of the period.

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

A century of no one characteristic style but of successive revivals, it produced in quantity more than any other century. The Classical Revival had a tremendous vogue, especially during the Regency, 1810–1820. Greek details were freely copied and used in every design. Houses had their classical porticos, public buildings their colonnades, whilst even a church steeple was a copy from a temple.

Meanwhile, a small number of artists and poets were instrumental in reviving the Gothic style. Numbers of churches were produced in some form of Gothic and the Houses of Parliament were built in this style. Lastly there came a revival of Renaissance principles.

MODERN

Towards the close of last century came a great change in construction, the use of iron and steel in building. Everyone is familiar with the great steel frameworks that become clothed with masonry or concrete which go to make our larger buildings of to-day.

STATISTICAL AND MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION

Population.—The last census was taken in 1951, when the population of England and Wales was 43,744,924, and Scotland 5,095,969.

Area.—The area of Great Britain is 88,000 square miles: England having 50,500, Wales 7,500, and Scotland 30,000 square miles.

Mountains.—The highest mountains in Great Britain are: England, Scafell Pike—3,210 feet, Cumberland (Lake District); Wales, Snowdon—3,560 feet, Caernarvonshire; Scotland, Ben Nevis—4,406 feet, Lochaber district, Inverness-shire.

Rivers.—The longest river in Great Britain is the Severn, rising in Wales, 220 miles; the longest in England is the Thames, 210 miles; whilst in Scotland, the Tay is 117 miles in length.

Lakes.—The largest lakes are: England, Windermere; Scotland, Loch Lomond; Wales, Bala (natural), Lake Vyrnwy is larger, but artificial.

Roads.—There are 185,523 miles of Public Roads in Great Britain; 158,654 in England and Wales; 26,809 in Scotland, made up as follows: Trunk Roads: England and Wales 6,299; Scotland 1,949. Class I Roads: England and Wales, 14,770; Scotland, 4,793. Class II Roads: England and Wales, 13,763; Scotland, 3,928. Class III Roads: England and Wales, 42,412; Scotland, 6,266. Unclassified: England and Wales, 81,410; Scotland, 9,933. The highest road altitude in England is 2,056 feet (St. John's Chapel to Alston, near Nenthead); in Scotland, 2,199 feet (Perth to Braemar at Cairnwell Pass): there is a private road from Braemar to Loch Builg which reaches an altitude of 2,391 feet. The highest in Wales is 1,790 feet at Bwlch-y-Groes, near Dinas Mawddwy.

Miscellanea.—The highest inn or licensed house in Great Britain is Tan Hill Inn, in Yorkshire, 1,732 feet. The well-known Cat and Fiddle Inn, in Cheshire, is 1,690 feet. Wanlockhead, in Dumfries-shire, at an altitude of 1,380 feet, is the highest village in Scotland. The highest village in the Scottish Highlands is Tomintoul, 1,160 feet. At an altitude of about 900 feet, Alston, in Cumberland, is reputed to be the highest market town in England. Taddington, Derbyshire, claims to be the highest village in England, at 1,050 feet, a claim that is disputed by Wear Head, Durham, at an altitude of about 1,100 feet. There are hamlets even higher.

Of the several churches claiming to be the smallest, the following might be mentioned:—Lullington, Sussex; Culbone, Somerset; St. Lawrence, Isle of Wight; St. Piran's Church, near Perranporth, Cornwall; Stockwood, Dorset; Upleatham, near Saltburn, Yorkshire. The oldest church in Great Britain is reputed to be that of St. Martin, at Canterbury, Kent; this, with the exception of its tower, is much the same as it was when St. Augustine saw it in 597. The church at Brixworth, Northamptonshire, is generally esteemed to be the next in order, having been built in 680.

The oldest windmill in England is that at Outwood Common, Surrey, having been built in 1665. That at Cranbrook, Kent, is considered the tallest, 72 feet.

FERRIES

The information given in the following pages is correct at the time of going to press, but owing to possible changes, sailing times and charges should be verified at the nearest A.A. office, or at the addresses given in the following pages.

All ferries run weather and other circumstances permitting. Petrol tanks need not be emptied. Charges are at owner's risk.

Every possible care is taken to ensure the accuracy of the following information, but the Automobile Association cannot be held responsible for errors or omissions or their consequences.

FERRIES IN ENGLAND AND WALES

It cannot be too strongly urged that members intending to visit the Isle of Wight should reserve their accommodation DIRECT with the Ferry Authorities concerned as long in advance as possible for both outward and return journeys. No charge is made for reservation, and advance remittance is not necessary.

Against the name of each ferry in the following alphabetical list is given the National Grid Reference for the Atlas at the end of the book, thus 15 31/5 8 (see page 254 where the reference is fully explained). The numbers of the ferries, printed in heavy type in the last column, correspond with the numbered paragraphs in the succeeding pages, giving abridged details of sailings and charges. The ferries are numbered in clockwise order from the Tyne to the Solway Firth.

FERRIES IN SCOTLAND

Members are reminded that tides and weather conditions may cause delay at some ferries, and also that in the touring season there is sometimes congestion on the more popular routes. Advance bookings cannot be made.

The ferries at Strome, Glenelg to Kylerhea and Kyle of Lochalsh to Kyleakin do not run on Sundays. This is important to those proceeding north-west from Invergarry, Fort Augustus and Invermoriston, as hotel accommodation may be difficult to obtain between these places and Strome.

Against the name of each ferry in the following alphabetical list is given the map page and National Grid Reference for the Atlas at the end of the book, thus 39 27/0 6 (see page 254 where the reference is fully explained). The numbers of the ferries, printed in heavy type in the last column, correspond with the numbered paragraphs in the succeeding pages, where abridged details of sailings and charges are given. The ferries are numbered in clockwise order from the Solway Firth to Berwick-upon-Tweed, and continue the numbering used for England and Wales.

SCOTTISH STEAMSHIP SERVICES

The information with regard to steamship services given in the following pages is correct at the time of going to press. For various reasons, changes in sailing times and charges continually occur, and these should be verified at the nearest A.A. Office, or at the individual addresses given in the following pages.

Provided advance arrangements are made with the operating company, cars can be conveyed by steamship service to the main islands, and between certain places on the mainland. Vehicles are conveyed at owner's risk, and acceptance is dependent on the suitability of tides and on other traffic conditions. Except where stated all services carry vehicles, and there are no petrol restrictions.

The Association cannot undertake to make reservations, and members should make bookings direct with the shipping company. In most cases cars are driven on board over wide planks, but in a few cases they may be slung aboard, a note appearing indicating the method of loading, which may vary with the state of the tide. The information given in the following pages is only a summary, but full details can be obtained from any A.A. Office or from the shipping companies concerned.

In the following alphabetical list, against each place name, is given the map page and National Grid Reference for the Atlas at the end of the book, thus 45 38/9 0 (see page 254 where the reference is fully explained). The numbers printed in heavy type in the last column are the service numbers, and correspond with the numbered paragraphs in the succeeding pages, where abridged details are given.

Every possible care has been taken to ensure accuracy, but the Automobile Association cannot be held responsible for errors or omissions or their consequences.

THE A.A. TOURING GUIDE ATLAS AND THE NATIONAL GRID

The Atlas on the following pages is printed by arrangement with the Controller of H.M. Stationery Office and the Director-General of Ordnance Survey. This map has been specially redrawn in Atlas form by the A.A. and, in common with the maps in the present Ordnance Survey series, has the National Grid superimposed upon it. The advantage of this method of map reference is that the National Grid provides one system of reference for the whole country, which is correct for any scale of map, the degree of accuracy of the reference depending on the scale of the map and the number of " co-ordinates " or figures given in the map reference. These co-ordinates are the figures given in the margins of the Atlas.

On page 256 is a map showing the Major Squares into which the country is divided, and, as the National Grid is based on the international metre, each Major Square measures 100 kilometres along each side. Each Major Square is sub-divided again by the co-ordinates appearing in the margin into a hundred smaller squares, each of which measures 10 kilometres along each side. The divisions of the Major Squares are shown by thick lines in the Atlas and the divisions of the smaller squares by thin broken lines. Each Major Square is 62½ miles across and each minor square 6¼ miles.

In the system of map references used by the National Grid, the number of the Major Squares is always given first, and throughout the Atlas the Major Square number appears in black figures on an open circle in each Major Square or part square.

The numbers of the Major Squares are made up of the number of hundreds of kilometres—east for the first figure and north for the second—from the datum point from which the National Grid is calculated, and it is convenient to speak of Major Square 10 as " ten," 20 as " twenty," and so on. This avoids confusion with the smaller squares into which the Major Squares are sub-divided, for which the east and north co-ordinates are given separately, e.g., smaller square 1 1 is spoken of as " one one " and 2 1 as " two one."

The heavy figures along top and bottom margins of the Atlas are the East co-ordinates or " Eastings " and the light figures at the sides are the North co-ordinates or " Northings." Heavy and light figures are used in the text of the book in agreement with the map.

The smaller squares are again broken down into still smaller squares in the National Grid shown in the new popular edition of the one-inch Map of England and Wales published by the Ordnance Survey.

A full description of the National Grid and its map reference system is beyond the scope of this Guide, but members interested in the subject should consult Ordnance Survey Booklet 1/45, obtainable from H.M. Stationery Office.

HOW TO USE MAP REFERENCES IN THE ATLAS

The map reference following a place name in the Gazetteer Section indicates : first the page of the Atlas and secondly the National Grid reference, e.g. Warwick 16 42/2 6 means that Warwick is on Atlas page 16 in Major Square 42. The Major Square number is in heavy type throughout the book, and the "grid" lines enclosing Major Squares are heavier than the rest. The large figures in open circles are the Major Square numbers.

Each Major Square is divided into 100 smaller squares, and the figures immediately after the Major Square number indicate the smaller square, e.g. Warwick (Major Square 42) is in smaller square 2 6. The first figure (2) gives the vertical line of smaller squares (numbered at head and foot of each page in heavy type) in one of which is Warwick. The precise square is found from the second figure (6) which appears on the side margins of the page in lighter type.

The Major Square references for the Orkney and Shetland Isles are prefixed with the letter N to distinguish them from the correspondingly numbered grid squares covering Southern England. Thus the Grid reference for Kirkwall in Orkney is N30/4 1, and for Lerwick in Shetland N41/4 4.

Below is a reproduction of Major Square 42, with an alphabetical list of some of the principal towns in it.

This chart facilitates the calculation of distances throughout the country. The towns selected have been carefully chosen on account of their geographical location and not according to their importance or size.

The figures represent the mileage over the SHORTEST PRACTICABLE ROUTE using roads classified "A" or "B" by the Ministry of Transport. The routes followed are not necessarily those recommended by the A.A., since the shortest is not always the quickest. Ferries have been utilised where there is a saving of distance, not necessarily of time.

* An asterisk signifies that the mileage includes a ferry crossing.*
